Introduction

The present word-index is a companion volume to the text of the Erdeni tunumal neretü sudur presented in transcription in my monograph Erdeni tunumal neretü sudur. Die Biographie des Altan qayan der Tümed-Mongolen,¹ pp. 149-216. When Professor Manfred Taube read the first draft of my work he suggested preparing a word-index of the entire text, taking as a model the word-index to the Erdeni-yin tobci prepared by Igor de Rachewiltz and John R. Krueger.² At that time I did not have the time to pursue this task and therefore postponed it. In the mean-time Johan Elverskog published an English translation of the Erdeni tunumal along with the transcription of the Mongolian text and a word-index.³ He, however, does not give the individual folio numbers, but counts the verse lines continuously throughout the whole text. It is therefore difficult, when working with the manuscript, to identify an individual passage with the help of the index. Thus I still consider it useful to have a word-index which can be used directly with the Mongolian text.

Up to now only one manuscript of the Erdeni tunumal is known. Therefore it is not possible to prepare a critical edition of the text. I also abstained from preparing a diplomatic edition because the Mongolian language of the 17th century is only accessible to us in its orthographic form. When preparing the word-index I once again compared the Mongolian text with the transcription. Unfortunately a number of errors have crept into the transcription, most of them due to word-processing by computer. In some places the line-number has been dropped. A list of Corrections to the transcription is appended to this introduction.

The transcription system follows Rachewiltz and Krueger with the following exceptions: For č and ĵ the simple c and j are given respectively. Tibetan letters in Mongolian script are transliterated as follows:

ca	=	ča
cha	=	čha
ja	=	ja
tša	=	tša
tsha	=	tsha
dža	=	dža

In order to use the word-index the following points may be noted:

1. Folio and line references are to the manuscript as transcribed in the Erdeni tunumal neretü sudur mentioned above. As they directly relate to the original text, the readings of the manuscript can be identified quickly.

2. All glosses, i.e. words given in square brackets in the transcription, have been regularly entered in the word-index.
3. No distinction is made between an ordinary noun and meaningful elements of a proper name. They are both listed in the same entry.
4. Likewise, homophones do not have separate entries.
5. Proper and geographical names as well as titles are listed in full. All elements of composite names are, however, also listed separately.
6. In some cases cross-references to different spellings are given.
7. Words written in the manuscript with separate suffixes are entered in the word-index as such. The suffixes are also entered separately.
8. Where suffixes are joined to the words they modify, the suffixes have not been entered separately.

Lastly, I wish to thank my students Barbara Weber and Natascha Frey for their careful reading of the word-index and cross-checking the references. All remaining mistakes are my responsibility.
